What does NASA have to do with fused glass pendants? Join this workshop and you will learn! Just in time for holiday gift-giving comes this fused glass pendant workshop! Dichroic glass displays multiple different colors depending on lighting conditions, so this glass is very popular with fused glass artists. Using basic glass-cutting skills (which will be demonstrated so experience is not necessary!), participants will create pendants from dichroic, fusible glass. You will create 4-5 pendants which will be ready for pickup on Thursday, November 19. A cord will be provided for each pendant as well as a small organza bag, making each one ready to gift immediately!

(Above items were created by previous workshop students.)
